

Tippecanoe County Prosecutor's Office in the News

April 15, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Woman pleads to child neglect

By SOPHIA VORAVONG; svoravong@jconline.com

A Lafayette woman faces between two and eight years in prison for injuries that a friend's toddler-age son suffered while in her care.

Karla M. Culley, 26, pleaded guilty Tuesday in Tippecanoe Superior Court 2 to neglect of a dependent, a Class C felony because the boy suffered bodily injury.

Sentencing is scheduled for June 25.

Culley did not admit to injuring 20-month-old boy, whom she was baby-sitting for 11 days last August. But at the questioning of her attorney, Michael Trueblood, she acknowledged the seriousness of the injuries and said she never took the boy to get medical treatment.

According to court documents, the boy suffered an occipital skull fracture -- a break in the bone at the base of the skull -- and bruises on his face and ears, consistent with direct blows to the face.

Doctors at Riley Hospital for Children in Indianapolis also found injuries to his genitals that appeared to have been caused by the area being pinched.

Culley told investigators that on other instances where she watched the boy, he always came to her with bruises. She explained that other injuries were caused when the boy fell down concrete steps and tripped over a toy, hitting his face on the linoleum.

Detective Bragg McDole of the Lafayette Police Department, who investigated the neglect accusations, said Tuesday that no other adults have been arrested or charged in connection to the boy's injuries.

Culley is being held in the Tippecanoe County Jail, where she is serving a 120-day sentence for violating probation in an unrelated marijuana possession case out of Tippecanoe Superior Court 4.

Her attorney requested that Culley be admitted to Home with Hope after her release in mid-May. Trueblood also asked for the later sentencing date to see how Culley fares at the rehabilitation agency. "Substance abuse is an element here," he told Judge Thomas Busch.

If Busch accepts Culley's plea with the prosecutor's office, an additional neglect charge and two counts of battery on a child, all Class D felonies, would be dropped.

April 15, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Lafayette man pleads guilty to rape

By SOPHIA VORAVONG; svoravong@jconline.com

A Lafayette man faces between six and 40 years in prison for breaking into the home of a female acquaintance last summer and sexually assaulting her.

Steven R. Chavez II, 24, pleaded guilty this morning in Tippecanoe Superior Court 1 to rape and burglary, both Class B felonies. Sentencing is scheduled for May 15.

Chavez has been held on a $100,000 surety bond in the Tippecanoe County Jail since his arrest on July 25. That morning, a Lafayette woman reported that she was raped by someone who broke into her South Third Street residence.

She was treated for injuries at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

According to court documents, Chavez and the victim have known each other for several years. The woman told investigators that she was in her bedroom when she heard someone trying to open the locked door.

When she yelled that she was going to call police, the suspect charged into the room and attacked her - squeezing the woman's neck so hard that she nearly passed out.

The man then shut the woman's 3-year-old son in the bedroom by tying shoelaces to the door knob and a nearby stair rail. He is then accused of forcing the woman into the bathroom, where the suspected rape took place.

Chavez was identified as a suspect because the woman recognized his voice and, when outside, noticed a green, four-door sport utility vehicle - a description that matches Chavez's vehicle - parked behind her home.

Detective Scott Galloway of the Lafayette Police Department said today that the attack is believed to have been an isolated incident.

Under the terms of his plea agreement with the prosecutor's office, Chavez cannot appeal his convictions or file for post-conviction relief, Deputy Prosecutor Laura Zeman said.

The terms of his sentence will be left up to Judge Randy Williams, who can either merge or stack the offenses to which Chavez pleaded. A Class B felony is punishable by between six and 20 years in prison.

Chavez also admitted Wednesday to violating his probation for unrelated intimidation and thefts cases.

---

April 11, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Man who led police on chase convicted

STAFF REPORTS

An Illinois man faces prison time after being found guilty of fleeing from police and injuring two officers during pursuit a year ago that began at the Country View Estates apartment complex.

Ronald Lamar Wright, 23, was found guilty of resisting law enforcement with a vehicle, operating a vehicle while under the influence of marijuana, reckless driving and other misdemeanor offenses after a trial Thursday in Tippecanoe Superior Court 6.

Jurors deliberated for just 20 minutes before returning the verdicts, according to Chief Deputy Prosecutor Kristen McVey.

The Lafayette Police Department was called to Country View Estates on the city's south end on Jan. 28, 2008, for a domestic violence complaint. The caller identified Wright as the suspect.

Officers attempted to pull over Wright, who at first stopped his vehicle but then fled. The pursuit reach speeds of more than 60 mph going north on Ninth Street and onto Union Street.

Wright's vehicle crashed into a tree off Courtland Avenue. He was arrested shortly thereafter in the yard of a nearby residence, where he fought with police, McVey said. Two officers suffered minor injuries.

A sentencing date has not yet been set.

---

April 9, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Fight over TV leads to 6 years in prison

By SOPHIA VORAVONG; svoravong@jconline.com

A Gary man will serve six years in prison and must take anger management courses for stabbing his former roommate during a dispute last summer over a flat-screen television.

Alvin R. McBride, 29, formerly of West Lafayette, also must spend a year on supervised probation after his release, Tippecanoe Superior Court 2 Judge Thomas Busch ordered this morning.

McBride pleaded guilty March 3 - the day his jury trial was scheduled to begin - to battery by means of a deadly weapon, a Class C felony, admitting that he stabbed Mani Johnson three times. He had been charged with attempted murder.

Johnson, 31, suffered wounds to his abdomen and left arm. Tippecanoe County Deputy Prosecutor Ian O'Keefe said Johnson bled so heavily that he required a blood transfusion after the "Blitzkrieg-style" attack.

"One stab wound went straight through his arm," O'Keefe said. "For it to go through his muscle and back out ... required a lot of force. Mani Johnson felt the defendant was trying to kill him."

McBride, however, testified that it was not his intent. The former friends had argued in prior months because Johnson was not working while living with McBride and owed him money.

"He used to be a close friend," McBride said. "I'm sorry. I wish he was here so I could apologize to him and his family."

The stabbing took place June 29 in the parking lot of The Lodge Apartments, 2101 Cumberland Ave. in West Lafayette, where both Johnson and McBride lived. An injured Johnson drove himself to the nearby Wal-Mart Supercenter for help.

According to evidence presented in court today, Johnson had filed a theft report June 23 with the West Lafayette Police Department, saying someone stole his 40-inch television and a game system from his apartment.

Johnson went to McBride's apartment on June 29 and, while peering through the patio doors, saw what he believed his television inside. He admitted to going through the unlocked patio doors and taking it.

Detective Sgt. Cindy Marion said investigators later determined the flat-screen belonged to Johnson.

McBride's attorney, Scott King, told Busch that Johnson's then roommate, Lamont Lane, gave McBride the television as payment for money Johnson owed.

The prosecutor's office, however, has not been able to contact Lane. It's believed that he faked his own death, O'Keefe said.

Busch also ordered that McBride pay about $4,300 in restitution to cover Johnson's medical costs.

"After listening to two hours of testimony this morning, there seems to be a disturbing trend toward self-help," the judge said, referring also to a prior sentencing in his courtroom for a drive-by shooting.

"I don't know why that is. Maybe it is just coincidental."

April 9, 2009: WLFI TV

Prison ordered in stabbing
Alvin McBride ordered to serve six years

- Sue Scott

LAFAYETTE, Ind - A stabbing has resulted in a six year prison sentence for Alvin McBride.

The 29 year old Gary man pleaded guilty to battery with a deadly weapon.

McBride stabbed Mani Johnson outside Lodge apartments in West Lafayette in June 2008.

Court documents show McBride stabbed Johnson because he took a TV from McBride's apartment. Johnson claimed McBride stole the TV from him.

Johnson suffered stab wounds to the arm and abdomen and sought at a nearby Wal-mart.

Tippecanoe County prosecutor Pat Harrington said Johnson supported of the plea agreement. McBride had originally been charged with Attempted Murder.

Once McBride serves his six year prison sentence, he must serve one year on probation.

---

April 8, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Teen's brazenness helps seal 30-year robbery sentence

By SOPHIA VORAVONG; svoravong@jconline.com

A Lafayette teenager was sentenced Tuesday to 30 years in prison for his role in an armed robbery a year ago that injured two Domino's Pizza employees.

McConney J. George, 18, was found guilty of 11 felonies -- multiple counts of robbery, criminal confinement and theft -- after a February jury trial in Tippecanoe Superior Court 2.

In handing down Tuesday's ruling, Judge Thomas Busch noted the teenager's lack of remorse. Three investigators with the Lafayette Police Department testified that they feared George would commit crimes of violence again. "After I take statements, I like to ask the suspects what they learned from the interview, from the crime," Detective Lt. Tom Davidson said. "Very nonchalantly and without any remorse, (George) said, 'I left too many witnesses.' "I was shocked by his answer."

George was one of two teenagers who stormed into Domino's on Creasy Lane the night of March 2, 2008. He was armed with a BB gun that appeared to be a handgun, according to testimony presented during trial.

A male employee was struck on the top of his head with the gun, causing a large cut that bled immediately. A female employee was punched in the face.

The second suspect, Shamone L. Evans, 18, pleaded guilty to two counts of armed robbery and was sentenced in December to 25 years in prison.

George's mother, Janice Eloi of Baltimore, urged Busch to give her son a sentence in line with Evans. She testified that they moved to Lafayette just two to three months before the robbery, explaining that George was not familiar with the area.

"McConney thinks if he walks away, he is going to look weak," Eloi said. " ... He was not the ringleader. They made him out to be the ringleader. He didn't know Lafayette. He didn't know those places."

Both George and Evans also are believed to have been involved in a series of business robberies on March 8 in Lafayette. Those cases are pending.

Five other co-defendants -- all accused of minor roles, including accepting money taken in the robbery -- entered pleas with the Tippecanoe County prosecutor's office. They received lighter sentences.

George was represented during trial by attorney Mike Troemel, who also volunteered to represent the teenager on appeal.

During Tuesday's sentencing hearing, deputy prosecutor Elizabeth Goodrich presented a recently discovered letter that George mailed from the Tippecanoe County Jail in April 2008. Sent to a female acquaintance, the letter described how to conceal marijuana in a pouch between two sheets of paper.

It also instructed the friend to put a co-defendant's name and address as the return address. "This was an attempt to frame a co-defendant ... the 'snitch,' " Goodrich said.

---

April 7, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Teen gets 30 years for Domino's holdup

By SOPHIA VORAVONG; svoravong@jconline.com

A Lafayette teenager was sentenced this afternoon to 30 years in prison for holding up a Domino's Pizza a year ago and injuring two employees.

McConney J. George, 18, was found guilty of 11 felonies, including multiple counts of robbery and criminal confinement, after a jury trial in February in Tippecanoe Superior Court 2.

He was one of two teenagers who donned dark masks - believed to be T-shirts wrapped around their heads - and walked into Domino's on Creasy Lane the night of March 2, 2008.

George was armed with a BB gun that appeared to be a handgun, according to testimony presented during the trial. A male employee was struck on the top of his head with the butt of the gun, causing a large cut that bled immediately.

Investigators who interviewed George prior to his arrest testified today that they were troubled by statements George made.

"Very nonchalantly and without any remorse, he said, 'I left too many witnesses,' " Lt. Tom Davidson of the Lafayette Police Department testified. "I was shocked by his answer."

The second teenager, Shamone L. Evans, 18, pleaded guilty to two counts of armed robbery and was sentenced in December to 25 years in prison.

---

April 4, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Woman gets 10 years for 3 knife hold-ups

STAFF REPORTS

A Lafayette woman was sentenced Friday to 10 years in prison for holding up two restaurants and a convenience store over three days a year ago.

Amy A. Jaime, 28, pleaded guilty in November in Tippecanoe Superior Court 2 to four counts of robbery, a Class B felony, and three counts of theft, a Class D felony.

It was done without the benefit of a plea agreement.

Jaime was arrested after Lafayette police received tips identifying her as a suspect in robberies at Domino's Pizza, 35 Beck Lane, on Feb. 25; Domino's Pizza, 1221 S. Creasy Lane, on Feb. 26; and Village Pantry, 3630 Greenbush St., on Feb. 27.

The robber in all three holdups was described as a short white woman in her late teens to late twenties. In each, a knife was displayed.

Detectives watching outside her apartment on Feb. 28 noted that a white coat worn by Jaime that day matched one worn by the Village Pantry robbery suspect.

Kristen McVey, Tippecanoe County's chief deputy prosecutor, said Jaime told investigators she robbed to support a crack cocaine addiction.

Superior Court 2 Judge Thomas Busch also ordered Friday that Jaime serve two years on community corrections and two years on probation. She also must pay $786 in restitution.

---

April 3, 2009: WLFI TV

Former club president sentenced Timothy Smith placed on work release

Updated: Friday, 03 Apr 2009, 6:55 PM EDT

Published : Friday, 03 Apr 2009, 4:12 PM EDT

- Sue Scott

LAFAYETTE, Ind - Former booster club president Timothy R. Smith, 42, plead guilty to forgery, and has been sentenced to one year of work release for taking thousands of dollars from the organization.

Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington said Smith couldn't remember exactly what he did with nearly $22,000 that he took from the East Tipp Athletic Booster club during a six month period in 2007.

"He told the judge that he was going through a divorce at the time and was paying for family items," said Harrington.

At the time he was charged, Steve Kohne from the Tippecanoe County Sheriff's Department said that Smith used an ATM card, wrote checks, and cashed CDs.

Tippecanoe Superior I Judge Randy Williams also ordered Smith to serve five years probation and pay back the money he had taken from the the East Tipp Booster Club.

The booster club describes itself on its website as "a parent-run organization that develops funds to support East Tipp Middle School student activities. Funds are used to purchase sports and extracurricular equipment, uniforms, and sponsor extracurricular club activites. East Tipp Booster Club members help run the concession stands at East Tipp football, basketball, and volleyball events. In addition, a major fundraising activity is working at a concession stand at all of the Purdue University football home games."

---

April 1, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Coke dealer gets 16 years

-- Curt Slyder/cslyder@jconline.com

An illegal alien living in Lafayette will spend 16 years in prison for selling cocaine to an undercover officer. Tippecanoe Superior Court 1 Judge Randy Williams sentenced Luis E. Trejo, 38, on Monday after Trejo had earlier pleaded guilty to a Class A felony count of conspiring to deal cocaine.

According to Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington, Trejo sold cocaine to an undercover officer in a southside Lafayette apartment complex in 2007.

Trejo was in a vehicle that was stopped by police after the sale. Police found 28.6 grams of cocaine inside, Harrington said.

"That's a very large amount," Harrington said, estimating the cocaine's street value at $3,000 to $4,500. Upon his release from prison, Trejo, who is in the country illegally, will be subject to deportation, Harrington said.

---

March 31, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

VP robber gets 8 years

-- Curt Slyder/cslyder@jconline.com

A Lafayette man was sentenced Monday for attempting to rob a Lafayette Village Pantry with a sawed-off shotgun in April 2008.

Tippecanoe Superior Court 2 Judge Thomas Busch sentenced Robert P. Niles, 28, to eight years in prison to be followed by one year in community corrections and three years of supervised probation.

Niles pleaded guilty in February to conspiracy to commit robbery while armed with a deadly weapon, a Class B felony, and dealing in a sawed-off shotgun, a Class D felony.

According to Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington, Niles walked into the Village Pantry at 1008 S. Fourth St., on April 21, 2008, and pointed a sawed-off shotgun at the clerk, demanding money.

After the clerk didn't respond to at least two demands for money, Niles fled, Harrington said. He was arrested at his Lafayette home a few days later. A sawed-off shotgun was found under his pillow, Harrington said.

---

March 29, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Concern about heroin on rise Last year, 11 cases – 9 so far this year

By SOPHIA VORAVONG; svoravong@jconline.com

From what Detective Jon Eager of the West Lafayette Police Department knows now about heroin, it's no surprise how quickly abuse of the drug spread in his childhood hometown.

At one point, his Indiana high school's entire softball team tested positive for the highly addictive opiate, said Eager, drug recognition expert for the Tippecanoe County Drug Task Force.

"Once you get a handful of people to try it, you've now got five new customers who need to have it," he said. "Heroin creates a physiological addiction. Your body has to have it. Once it starts in a community, you're going to continue to see it."

Officials say that makes the drug's recent presence in Greater Lafayette all the more troubling. As of March 27, nine people have been arrested in Tippecanoe County on suspicion of heroin dealing or heroin possession. That's compared to 11 heroin-related drug offenses for all of 2008, according to Prosecutor Pat

Harrington.

"This is a reason for concern because the drug has not been in the area for a decade or more," he said. "There are some officers who have never dealt with heroin before.

"It's one more terrible drug here that we have to try and stem the distribution of."

Sgt. Tim Payne, commander of the Lafayette Police Department's Street Crimes Unit, said heroin is typically sold in "stamp bags" that contain about a tenth of a gram -- making it difficult for law enforcement to detect. Yet even in small doses, people can easily overdose because of its potency, he said.

Processed from morphine, a substance extracted from the seed pod of certain types of poppy plants, heroin can be sold as anything from a white powder to a black, sticky substance known on the streets as black tar heroin. Injected, snorted or smoked, it gives users a rush within seconds.

Eager, a member of the drug task force since 2007, said officers first began hearing about heroin in Tippecanoe County last summer. A few months later, they began to see the drug sold and abused here. Most of it appears to be coming from Chicago and Indianapolis, he said.

"These people, when they take heroin, actually get physically sick," Eager said. "They have sweats and goose bumps. They throw up. That's why they continue to use it -- they have to have it to not be sick anymore." Both Eager and Lafayette police Lt. Pat Flannelly, commander of the drug task force, say another concern is heroin that's been mixed with fentanyl, a synthetic painkiller.

Fentanyl can magnify the effects of heroin, creating the equivalent of a double dose of the drug. Eager said that variation has not yet been seen in Tippecanoe County.

In the meantime, law enforcement is working quickly to learn more about the opiate. Harrington and West Lafayette police Chief Jason Dombkowski met this past winter with the U.S. attorney's office in northern Indiana about heroin's increased presence.

Dombkowski said officers from Tippecanoe County recently attended a training session in Michigan City about the drug and its effects.

"We got a lot of good information on what to look for," he said. "It's certainly not something we want to see take a stronghold in our community."

---

March 27, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Lafayette man gets 16 years for dealing coke

STAFF REPORTS

Andrew Boyd, 23, of Lafayette was sentenced Thursday to serve 16 years for selling crack cocaine to Drug Task Force officers in February and March 2007 at Country View Estates in southern Lafayette.

Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington said Boyd was sentenced by Judge Randy Williams in Superior Court 1 to serve 12 years on charges of conspiracy to deal, a Class B felony, and four years for forgery, a class C felony.

Boyd, who has prior convictions in another county for possession of a controlled substance, was ordered to serve 12 years in the department of corrections, one year community corrections and three years of probation.

March 26, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Man found guilty of cocaine dealing

A Chicago man faces a number of years in prison after being found guilty Wednesday of dealing cocaine by a Tippecanoe Superior Court 1 jury.

Brandon Mason, 23, was arrested in December 2007 after Lafayette police were called to investigate a domestic battery on Holloway Drive, south of downtown Lafayette.

Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington said police found about 27 grams of cocaine and $1,000 cash on Mason as well as scales, syringes and cocaine residue inside the apartment.

He was found guilty of dealing cocaine and possession of cocaine, both Class A felonies, and two other drug offenses. The sentence for a Class A felony is from 20 to 50 years. He is scheduled to be sentenced April 23 by Judge Randy Williams.

March 26, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Growing presence, impact of gangs cited in Greater Lafayette

By Meranda Watling • mwatling@journalandcourier.com

Dru Anthrop said as a Central Catholic Jr.-Sr. High School student, he feels somewhat sheltered from gang activity and its influence in this community.

He said his awareness was raised after hearing Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington discuss the trends and related growing drug problems in Greater Lafayette. Harrington spoke to Central Catholic students and community members on Wednesday.

"I was kind of completely ignorant of gang activity because here, we're protected," Anthrop said. "I don't know anyone involved in gangs. This made me aware."

Harrington said teens like the Central Catholic senior and his schoolmates need to be educated about the signs of gang activity and how to react. That age group is more in tune with popular music videos and emerging technologies that gangs sometimes use.

"We are addressing the situation," Harrington said. "But you have to be aware. Because if you aren't aware and come across a gang and disrespect them, you could be in trouble."

Among the troubling local trends Harrington cited in his presentation was the known presence of at least 23 gangs in this county. Mostly, they have trickled down from the Chicago area.

He said while gang violence hasn't been a significant problem here, the drug trade is flourishing. More than 40 Class A felony drug arrests have been made this year, Harrington said. And more than half of those are believed to be gang-related.

Also, more heroin arrests were made in the first three months of 2009 than any year prior in Tippecanoe County.

Harrington said a drive-by shooting on Club Lane in December is believed to be gang-related, and he cited the ongoing presence of graffiti around the county -- including a gang "tag" in a courthouse restroom.

He showed the students some of the symbols or tattoos different gangs use, such as specific numbers or colors identified with particular groups. And he encouraged them to notify police via the WeTip hot line at (800) 78-CRIME or (800) 782-7463.

Central Catholic senior Heather Christopher said after the presentation that "some of the statistics, especially the local ones, were shocking."

She also was glad to be aware of the problem and also what to look for or avoid.

"It's important to know where you are and who's around you at all times," she said. "And be able to recognize the signs and to do something."

---

March 25, 2008: WLFI TV

Jury convicts drug dealer Cocaine was coming from Chicago

Updated: Wednesday, 25 Mar 2009, 6:01 PM EDT
Published : Wednesday, 25 Mar 2009, 5:51 PM EDT

- Sue Scott

LAFAYETTE, Ind - A jury convicts a Chicago man of selling cocaine in the Lafayette area.

Brandon Mason, 23, was found guilty of Dealing Cocaine, Possession of Cocaine, Maintaining a Common Nuisance, and Possession of Paraphernalia. Mason was the subject of a trial Wednesday in Tippecanoe Superior Court I.

Tippecanoe County prosecutor Pat Harrington said Lafayette Police responded to a report of a domestic battery in December 2007 on Holloway Drive. "Police spotted the defendant leaving the scene," said Harrington. "Police found 21 grams of crack, digital scales and $1,000 on him. Inside the apartment, they found more scales, cocaine residue, marijuana, and a pipe."

Harrington said Mason would drive to Chicago every week or two to bring back cocaine to sell in the Lafayette area.

Mason faces a possible 50 year prison term when he's sentenced April 23rd. Harrington says Mason has no prior convictions.

March 25, 2008: WLFI TV

Prosecutor educates parents on gangs Parents learn gang symbols

Updated: Wednesday, 25 Mar 2009, 11:45 PM EDT
Published : Wednesday, 25 Mar 2009, 11:45 PM EDT

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (WLFI) - Parents gathered in the cafeteria at Central Catholic High School see what they might miss when out in public.

"I was interested to hear about gang activity in Lafayette," said parent Lou Fenoglio.

Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington broke down the different gang symbols and tattoos.

"I didn't realize there were so many different gangs associated with the Lafayette area," said Fenoglio. Fenoglio will take what he's learned about the 23 gangs in Tippecanoe County home so he can educate his three children about what to watch out for.

"Just to be aware, not to be scared, not to be afraid, but to be aware and openly talk about it," Fenoglio said. Prosecutor Harrington said he's leaving the courtroom to take on the role of teacher so parents can be part of the solution to the gang problem.

"So we can be safe and be smart and so they know what law enforcement is doing about the issue," explained Harrington.

Harrington hopes the presentation will also encourage parents to get involved to get gangs out of the area. Parents should know they are liable up to 5,000 dollars if their child does any damage in association with a gang.

Also, most gang crimes are prosecuted in adult, not juvenile court meaning convictions will show up on a permanent criminal record.

---

March 21, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Man stabbed brother; gets four years

Sophia Voravong; svoravong@jconline.com

A Lafayette man was sentenced Friday afternoon to four years in prison for stabbing his brother in the back after a fight that began over money.

Judge Thomas Busch of Tippecanoe Superior Court 2 also ordered that William L. Craig, 55, spend four years on supervised probation after his release.

He also must pay $18,016 in restitution for his brother's medical expenses.

Craig pleaded guilty in January to aggravated assault, a Class B felony, admitting that he stabbed Jeffrey L. Craig on Aug. 22 at the brother's residence on Cor Dale Court.

Jeffrey Craig, was stabbed more than once, with the most serious being a wound to the right side of his back that punctured a lung. He was hospitalized for a day at St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington said Jeffrey Craig told Tippecanoe County probation officers that it was not the first time his brother brandished a weapon at a family member.

According to court documents, William Craig told investigators that he had been staying with his brother for the past few months.

They had been drinking and playing games when they started fighting over William Craig's lack of employment and his not helping with finances.

---

March 19, 2009: WLFI TV

WL sex offender sentenced 38 year sentence for child molestation

Updated: Thursday, 19 Mar 2009, 10:31 AM EDT

Published: Wednesday, 18 Mar 2009, 10:04 PM EDT

- Jenna Emenhiser
- Sue Scott

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (WLFI) - A West Lafayette man is sentenced to 38 years in prison for molesting two young boys.

Matthew Paul Richardson, 33, pleaded guilty to two counts of child molesting.

Tippecanoe County Deputy Prosecutor Kristen McVey said the children were abused during a three year period starting in 2005.

The boys were ages six and ten.

McVey said when Richardson was interviewed by police, he admitted the molestation, but justified it by saying it was "consensual" and that "no one got hurt" because there was "no blood or bruising."

McVey said the judge found aggravating factors in the case, including the defendant had attempted to hire someone to kill the deputy prosecutor and two witnesses.

---

March 17, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Confinement leads to 10-year term

A Lafayette man was sentenced Tuesday to 10 years in prison for forcing his girlfriend out of her vehicle and into his pickup, then driving her to a home they shared.

The incident took place in June 2008 near Happy Hollow and River roads.

Douglas H. Wilson, 34, pleaded guilty in November in Tippecanoe Superior Court 2 to criminal confinement, a Class C felony; domestic battery, a Class D felony; and possession of marijuana with a prior conviction, a Class D felony.

He also was found to be a habitual offender.

Wilson was accused of crashing into his girlfriend's vehicle before forcing her into his truck. The woman's three children and another adult were left behind.

March 17, 2009: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Realistic 'toy' guns growing concern for police officers

By SOPHIA VORAVONG; svoravong@jconline.com

When two masked men stormed into a Lafayette restaurant a year ago waving a black handgun, employees had no way of telling that the brandished weapon was a toy.

The BB gun was made of a hard, heavy plastic. Silver-colored metal detailing contributed to its realistic appearance, Detective Herb Robinson of the Lafayette Police Department testified during a trial last month of one of the suspects.

It was just one example of a growing concern for law enforcement officials, who say toy guns that closely resemble real weapons could end in tragedy.

"At quick glance, in the heat of the moment, there's no way to tell what's real and what's not," Robinson said this week. "You have to assume in those situations, such as robbery, that a weapon being pointed at or directed toward you may very well cause harm."

Since 2000, the Lafayette Police Department has investigated at least 33 incidents involving "fake or fictitious" weapons, including airsoft guns that shoot plastic BBs at relatively low velocities.

Robinson said the actual number of incidents could be higher because of instances where a crime is initially entered as involving a firearm. He shared samples of airsoft guns confiscated over the years and kept in LPD's property room.

"These two here are very similar in size, color, markings, handles," Robinson said. "The biggest difference is their weight, but even then there's not a lot of difference."

Federal law requires that toy guns or imitations have an orange tip to indicate they're not real, but the tips can be removed or easily disguised. One of the airsoft guns confiscated by Lafayette police had the orange tip painted black.

And Tippecanoe County Sheriff Tracy Brown said the orange tip may not be noticeable in poor lighting. "As police officers, we have to look at the totality of the situation. If it's an 8 year old carrying it, it's probably not a real weapon," he said. "But if it's a teenager, that is not as easy to determine. It's a matter of time and place."

Brown agreed with Robinson that some manufacturers make realistic airsoft and BB guns with similar sizes, shapes and magazines to actual firearms. But he also points out that some are made with transparent or colored plastic to set them apart.

A spokeswoman with the Toy Industry Association, based in New York City, did not immediately return a message left Tuesday seeking comment.

The line between real and fake is less blurred at the Tippecanoe County prosecutor's office. Prosecutor Pat Harrington said his office focuses on the intent of the criminal to determine what charges will be filed.

For instance, someone who uses an airsoft or BB gun to hold up a convenience store could be charged with armed robbery, a Class B felony. It carries a heftier sentence than robbery when a weapon is not involved.

"A lot of these BB guns, if you look at them in a split second, look real to a store clerk or a police officer," Harrington said. "It goes toward the intent of what they're trying to do -- what the victim perceives the crime as being. Even if it's a real gun that was not loaded, that is an inconsequential aspect."

"Laws are written to protect the public and the citizens."

---

March 17, 2009: WLFI TV

Domestic dispute leads to prison time Doug Wilson pleads to confinement case

Updated: Tuesday, 17 Mar 2009, 3:56 PM EDT
Published : Tuesday, 17 Mar 2009, 3:56 PM EDT

- Sue Scott

LAFAYETTE, Ind (WLFI) - A Tippecanoe County man is going to prison for ten years for forcing his former girlfriend into his vehicle and confining her.

Doug H. Wilson, 34, pleaded guilty to Domestic Battery, Possession of Marijuana While Having a Prior Conviction, and for being a Habitual Offender.

Deputy Prosecutor Kristen McVey said the charges stem from an incident on June 16, 2008. "Wilson forcibly removed the victim, his girlfriend, from a car, forced her into his truck, and drove her against her will to a house they shared," said McVey in a news release. "The event was witnessed by 3 young children that were in the truck during the offense. Marijuana was found in the defendant's truck."

The defendant has prior convictions from Florida and Georgia for Vehicle Theft, Burglary, Possession of Methamphetamine, and Fraud. The defendant resided in Tippecanoe County from October 2007 until the offense occurred in June of 2008.

Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Elizabeth Goodrich argued the case for the State of Indiana.

---

March 6, 2009: WLFI TV

Man sentenced for record cocaine bust One of area's largest drug seizures

Updated: Friday, 06 Mar 2009, 5:54 PM EST

- Sue Scott

LAFAYETTE, Ind - A sentencing came on March 6 in what prosecutors believe is one of the largest cocaine seizures in the Lafayette area.

Sergio Neri-Ortiz, 30, pleaded guilty to dealing cocaine. Tippecanoe Superior 2 Judge Tom Busch sentenced Ortiz to 40 years in prison.

Ortiz was arrested in April as part of a drug task force investigation. Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington said officers seized cocaine at 914 N. 8th Street in Lafayette. Harrington said officers found 2.5 kilos (or nearly five pounds of cocaine) with a street value of $250,000. "The drugs were hidden all over the house," said Harrington. "They even found some cocaine inside a six year old child's backpack." Harrington said the child tested positive for cocaine.

Harrington said police believe Ortiz was a major player in drug trafficking in the Lafayette area.

---

February 25, 2009: Monticello Herald Journal

Claypool murder case gets boost of support Anonymous tip line, bigger reward added to investigation efforts by state.

By KATIE DUFFEY, kduffy@thehj.com

Published: Wednesday, February 25, 2009 10:41 AM CST

Using the lure of an increased reward and the veil of anonymity, local law enforcement officers and the family of slain Twin Lakes teacher Judith Claypool are hopeful new details will surface in the Dec. 28 murder case.

"We appreciate the support of the community. At this time we have placed our trust in local law enforcement officers, and have faith that it will be resolved," stated Claypool's brother Ken Houston, speaking on behalf of the family for the first time since the killing.

"We would hope that anyone with information would come forward."

A partnership formed with the Tippecanoe County Prosecutor's Office, investigators hope, will allow for information to be more forthcoming regarding the 67-year-old's murder — the result of an apparent invasion of her lakeside home.

"Everyone is concerned that it hasn't been resolved, myself included. One's expectation often is that these cases are solved soon after they are committed, and that is far-fetched. I do echo their concern however," said White County Prosecutor Robert Guy. "It is not from a lack of effort, but a lack of information."

According to Guy, Cpl. Scott Brown with the Indiana State Police informed him of a service used by the Tippecanoe County Prosecutor's Office that allows individuals with information regarding a specific crime to make reports with explicit anonymity.

"He (Brown) indicated to me that we may be able to utilize this resource in our investigation on a one-time basis to piggyback with Tippecanoe County," said Guy.

"The unique thing about WeTip is that it has an anonymous hotline that they believe has a greater capacity of generating information because it does allow a person to remain anonymous."

Launched in May of last year as part of Tippecanoe County's Project Safe Neighborhoods Initiative, WeTip is a results-driven non-profit agency that officials say above all places the importance on assisting law enforcement solve cases.

“After meeting with citizens, civic groups, businesses and neighborhood associations it became clear that there was a hesitancy to report illegal activity to police,” said Kathryn Redd, Project Safe Neighborhoods/Anti-Gang Initiative Coordinator for Tippecanoe County, who attested to WeTip’s immediate success stories.

“We have received in excess of 500 criminal activity reports, from 36 different counties in Indiana, since the program began.”

According to the WeTip Web site, all calls are anonymous — not just confidential. Where confidential calls can be subpoenaed for legal purposes, anonymous phone calls cannot be traced or taped.

When calling the hotline, 800-78-CRIME, an informant is instantly informed that “This is the WeTip Crime Hotline, do not give your name or identify yourself in anyway.” If at any time the caller starts to identify themselves, the operator will disconnect the call.

Once anonymity has been established, the operator takes the caller through a series of about 65 questions — a lengthy list aimed at eliciting as much information from the informant as possible. Finally, the caller is asked if “there is an arrest and conviction, are you interested in a reward?” If the answer is yes, the caller receives a three-part fictitious code name in addition to their tip number.

Once contacted regarding the Claypool case, Redd said her office immediately jumped at the opportunity to help White County investigators with the use of WeTip.

“When I was approached by the ISP on behalf of the White County Prosecutor for WeTip assistance, there was never a doubt that the executives at WeTip would provide the service,” said Redd. “Given the severity of the crime, this is a case where there are no jurisdictional boundaries.”

Since signing on with WeTip, Redd said Tippecanoe County has broken all records in the service’s 36-year history. Attesting to its usefulness locally, Redd also indicated that other Hoosier counties’ utilization of WeTip have paid major dividends in tracking down criminals.

“In early January, the Indiana State Police (in Lake County) asked for assistance from WeTip to assist in solving two cold-case gang murder cases,” said Redd. “WeTip was happy to accommodate them in trying to bring the perpetrators to justice.”

As White County’s case is added to the WeTip database, flyers advertising the hotline, along with an increase in reward money, are being circulated throughout the community — with plans also on the way for a billboard to be placed in Monticello alerting residents to WeTip.

Last month, Monticello businessman Don Rollheiser offered $5,000 to the prosecutor’s office as a reward for any information leading to the capture and conviction of Claypool’s murderer. Spurred by this action, two local groups have recently come forward with additional pledges of money to help in the investigation.

According to Guy, the Class of ’59 and Friends, as well as Twin Lakes School Corporation members, have helped the reward available swell to $10,000 — a total inflated further still with the promise of up to $1,000 from WeTip.

“There is someone who knows what happened, the key is making sure that person understands the program and knows there is a 100 percent anonymous method to report what they know,” asserted Redd. “It takes the determination of the community to get the word out.”

Anyone with information regarding Claypool’s murder is encouraged to contact either Detective Patrick Shafer with the White County Sheriff’s Office at 574-583-5121, or make their report anonymously with WeTip by dialing 1-800-78-CRIME.

Visit www.wetip.com for more information.

---

February 26, 2009: WLFI TV

Suspect extradited for 2002 murder case Teresa Pacheco returned from Mexico

Updated: Thursday, 26 Feb 2009, 11:04 AM EST
Published : Wednesday, 25 Feb 2009, 4:23 PM EST

- Sue Scott

LAFAYETTE, Ind - A 2002 Tippecanoe County murder case may soon see resolution. A suspect in the case was successfully extradited from Mexico on Wednesday.

Teresa Pacheco is charged with the shooting his former girlfriend Juanita Santarrosa. Police say Pacheco fled the Lafayette area after Santa Rosa was found dead along Lilly Road in September 2002.

Prosecutor Pat Harrington said Pacheco was put on a plane in Mexico, and arrived at the Houston airport this afternoon.

"Representatives of the Tippecanoe County Sheriff's Department and a local FBI agent are escorting Pacheco," said Harrington. "Pacheco will arrive in Tippecanoe County overnight."

Court documents show the murder charge is based on DNA evidence from a green Pontiac Pacheco was using. It was abandoned in Utah and detectives found blood in the front passenger seat.

Pacheco was located in Mexico about a year ago, and is expected to make a court appearance this week.

---

February 17, 2009: WLFI TV

New anti-gang website online Comprehensive site for parents and teachers

Updated: Tuesday, 17 Feb 2009, 5:52 PM EST
Published : Tuesday, 17 Feb 2009, 5:36 PM EST

Nicole Caan

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (WLFI) - A new anti-gang website for parents and educators is now online. The Teachers Against Gangs site began this week. Website members can ask questions in forums, look at gang symbols and post gang related photos and video.

Kathryn Redd, the Anti-Gang Initiative Coordinator for the Tippecanoe County Prosecutor's Office, describes the site as a comprehensive place to find out about gangs. "It's just pulling that information together so that the community has one place they can go and gather these things. We'll also have news reports, any current studies that are out," said explained. Redd will be an administrator for the site.

Also, developed recently was a companion anti-gang website for law enforcement: Gang Cops Online. It's a place for officers to share information confidentially.

---

February 11, 2009: WLFI TV

Rapist likely to spend life in prison Jeffrey Akard sentenced to 93 years

Updated: Wednesday, 11 Feb 2009, 7:16 PM EST
Published : Wednesday, 11 Feb 2009, 6:41 PM EST

- Sue Scott

LAFAYETTE, Ind - A Lafayette rape victim told a judge she wanted her attacker to be put away, so that he cannot hurt anyone else.

Jeffrey Akard, 34, was sentenced to 93 years in prison by Tippecanoe Superior 2 Judge Tom Busch.

A jury found the former Purdue student guilty of repeatedly raping the woman and confining her in his apartment for 15 hours in September 2006.

Akard is already serving nearly 20 years in prison on federal child pornography charges. Police found the materials while investigating the rape.

Tippecanoe County prosecutor Pat Harrington says the victim testified she didn't think she would make it out of Akard's apartment alive. Police said the woman had gone voluntarily to Akard's home, but when she wanted to leave, Akard put her in restraints. Investigators said Akard shocked her several times with a stun gun, threatened her with a handgun, and sexually assaulted her several times.

---

January 23, 2009: WLFI TV

WeTip Hotline honored Hotlines less than a year old

Updated: Friday, 23 Jan 2009, 10:17 AM EST
Published : Thursday, 22 Jan 2009, 11:49 PM EST

- Niccole Caan

TIPPECANOE COUNTY, Ind. (WLFI) - Tippecanoe County's WeTip Hotline will receive a national award after being in operation less than a year.

The hotline will be honored at the national WeTip Conference for having the most calls per capita. Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington says the community is what makes the program so successful in our area.

"The reward is for everyone in the community. I think it's tremendous everyone has excepted this and they will call the anonymous tip line and report crimes when they see them or they have any information about a crime that has occurred. It's very rewarding," said Harrington.

Tippecanoe's WeTip is eight months old and already 475 tips have been taken. Harrington attributes part of the program's success to News Channel 18 distributing the number during newscasts.

"We noted that after Channel 18 uses the number we will see large tips the following 2-3 days," he explained.

Harrington will teach other counties in the nation how to make their hotlines successful at the WeTip national conference in California in April.

He believes the key is marketing the program to many different groups including schools, churches, neighborhood associations and businesses

---

January 21, 2009: WLFI TV

Lafayette man charged with murder Jeremy Knoy accused in beating death

Updated: Monday, 29 Dec 2008, 2:36 PM EST
Published : Monday, 29 Dec 2008, 2:23 PM EST

- Sue Scott

LAFAYETTE, Ind - The Tippecanoe County Prosecutor has charged a Lafayette man with one count of murder.

Jeremy Douglas Knoy, 25, is accused of killing Derek Liphard of Indianapolis on December 26. Knoy is being held in the Tippecanoe County jail without bond.

Officers were called to Knoy's house at 2312 North 19th Street around 9:00p.m. Police say a man was found dead inside the house with massive head injuries. The Affidavit of Probable Cause said Knoy talked to detectives at LPD. According to the document, "While Knoy smelled of alcohol he did not appear to be impaired. He spoke clearly and forthrightly with police. Knoy and Liphard had smoked some marijuana together, drank alcohol and were hanging out. In the late afternoon, Knoy and Liphard had visited relatives in Americus, then returned to Knoy's house. Knoy recalled that he noticed the time on the microwave clock was 7:33p.m. Knoy said that he couldn't recall what happened next, but remembered standing over Liphard striking him with a baseball bat. Knoy was unable to explain why or how the events began that resulted in his beating Liphard with a bat."

According to the Affidavit, Knoy admitted that he and Liphard had been friends since childhood.

---

January 28, 2009: Pharos-Tribune - McClatchy-Tribune

Monticello woman accused of theft: Bookkeeper reportedly confessed to embezzling more than $20,000

A Monticello woman has reportedly confessed to stealing more than $20,000 from a public library and local soccer league.

On Tuesday morning, 38-year-old Kimberly K. Helms turned herself in at the White County Sheriff's Department after a year-long investigation into her activities as bookkeeper for the Monticello-Union Township Public Library and Twin Lakes Soccer Association. She was arrested on six class C felony counts of forgery and four class D felony counts of theft.

Based on an investigation by the Indiana State Police White Collar Crime Division and the Indiana State Board of Accounts, Helms is accused of writing 21 library checks to herself for nearly $15,000, making $3,640 in payments from library funds to cover personal credit card accounts and stealing more than $5,000 from the Twin Lakes Soccer Association.

Helms is also accused of using library credit cards on multiple occasions for personal use, then reportedly put the charges in the names of co-workers.

According to court records, Helms admitted to the misuse of funds and reportedly paid back $5,000 to the soccer league on March 10, 2008. The criminal activity dates back to 2006.

Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington has been called in as special prosecutor to handle the case because Helms is married to a White County sheriff's deputy. Harrington pointed out that Helms' alleged criminal activity began before her marriage to the deputy, who is not being charged.

Helms was booked into the White County Jail on a $10,000 cash bond. If convicted, she faces up to eight years in prison for each class C felony and up to three years in prison for each class D felony.

December 12, 2008: WLFI TV

Heroin dealer sentenced Essu Brunson receives 40 year term

Updated: Friday, 12 Dec 2008, 4:27 PM EST
Published : Friday, 12 Dec 2008, 4:26 PM EST

- Sue Scott

LAFAYETTE - An Illinois man is sentenced to 40 years in prison for selling drugs in the Lafayette area and hitting a police officer with his car.

Essu Brunson, 32, pleaded guilty to dealing heroin and resisting law enforcement. Brunson was arrested in June for selling about $1,000 of heroin to an undercover police officer near the Market Square Shopping Center. According to Deputy Prosecutor Kristen McVey, "the Lafayette Police Department Street Crimes Unit made three controlled narcotics purchases of heroin from Brunson."

She said after the sale, officers arrived on the scene. As Brunson tried to flee, he rammed his vehicle into a van where officer A-J DeMello and his K-9 were standing. Demello suffered a knee injury. The dog was not hurt.

---

December 8, 2008: WLFI TV

Gang crimes on the rise Tippecanoe County housing targeted

Last Edited: Monday, 08 Dec 2008, 6:19 PM EST
Created On: Monday, 08 Dec 2008, 6:19 PM EST

Renetta DuBose

Lafayette - Kathryn Redd, who works with the Tippecanoe County prosecutor, said the best way to decrease gang activity is for the community to step up.

It's gang fights, like one recently posted on YouTube with students behind the Big Lots store in Lafayette, that has authorities beefing up enforcement. Redd said crimes like graffiti and drug trafficking are being done by some former Chicago Housing Authority residents now calling Lafayette home.

"Criminal CHA clients are exploiting the system by setting up drug sales and distribution operations in complexes throughout our county," said Redd.

"Anytime you have housing projects sometimes that opportunity presents itself. But we just all have to work diligently to combat that, to be warm and welcoming to the people that are coming for the right reasons," said Lafayette Mayor Tony Roswarski.

Lafayette resident and Hammond native Blanca Acevez said not everyone moving from areas to the north participates in illegal activities. She said targeting young people with a positive message is key.

"There's no reason to carry a gun. You have every resource available to you to be successful. There's no reason for it. I think that needs to be advocated through the schools," said Acevez.

The prosecutor's office trained landlords in Tippecanoe County and local schools on how to operate with the We Tip crime reporting service. Redd said between May and September this year Tippecanoe County's "We Tip Hotline" has taken 137 tips and 411 "Reports of Criminal Activities." She hopes the results encourage people to speak up. "By conveying our priorities and our message and the results of this enhanced enforcement, we have the opportunity to demonstrate to the community, that they have the power to do something, that they have the power to act," said Redd.

Redd said graffiti is down but there is a turf war between the Latin Kings and the Latin Dragons at McCutcheon High School. She said Lafayette Jefferson High School is the number one school for gang recruitment.

---

December 2, 2008: WLFI TV

Welch charged in death of student Prosecutor charges Welch on eight counts

Updated: Tuesday, 02 Dec 2008, 6:55 PM EST
Published : Tuesday, 02 Dec 2008, 4:21 PM EST

- Sue Scott

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (WLFI) - Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington has charged a Texas man with eight counts stemming from a crash that killed a Harrison High School student.

Joseph Welch, 30, of Galena, Texas, faces six felony charges including reckless homicide and operating while intoxicated causing death.

Court documents said surveillance video from the Marathon-Village Pantry at U.S. 52 and Morehouse Road on November 23 shows Welch ran a red light at Win Hentschel Boulevard. Then, Welch had a red light at Morehouse Road, where he collided with a car driven by Katherine Baker, 16, of West Lafayette. Baker died from blunt force trauma.

Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington said cooperation from Village Pantry Corporate offices was instrumental to the investigation. "We appreciate their assistance with this case," said Harrington. "I also want to thank members of our FACT, fatal alcohol crash team, for all of their diligence in pursuing evidence in this case." Court records said Welch had been drinking at Cox's Pub prior to the crash. According to the Affidavit of Probable Cause, "During an interview Welch admitted drinking alcohol at the bar prior to the crash, but said he did not think he was intoxicated. Welch still claimed that he had a green light, and claimed there were other vehicles there at the time of the crash."

Welch is expected to appear before a judge for an initial hearing on Wednesday. The court documents said Welch was convicted of Operating While Intoxicated in Dickinson County, Iowa in June 2007.

---

November 7, 2008: WLFI TV

Man sentenced for pointing firearm at officer Robert Lee Scott gets 29 year sentence

Updated: Friday, 07 Nov 2008, 6:34 PM EST
Published : Friday, 07 Nov 2008, 6:34 PM EST

- Sue Scott

LAFAYETTE - A man convicted of murder in Florida is going back to prison for crimes committed in Lafayette.

Robert Lee Scott, 41, was sentenced to 29 years in prison. Last month a jury found Scott guilty of several charges. They include Battery with a Deadly Weapon, Resisting Law Enforcement and Pointing a Firearm. Tippecanoe Circuit Court Judge Don Daniel found Scott guilty of being a Serious Violent Felon in Possession of a Firearm. "Martin will serve the entire 29 years in the Indiana Department of Corrections and faces a hold for Florida authorities on parole violations and other charges when he completes his prison sentence in Indiana," according to a news release from the Tippecanoe County Prosecutor's Office.

The charges stem from Scott threatening a bartender and pointing a gun at a Lafayette Police Officer January.

Scott was convicted of murder in Florida in 1984 and was out on parole in January when he was arrested in this case.

---

October 31, 2008: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Cocaine dealer sentenced to prison Jamaal Moore sold cocaine in Lafayette area

Updated: Friday, 31 Oct 2008, 5:35 PM EDT

Published : Friday, 31 Oct 2008, 5:34 PM EDT

- Sue Scott

LAFAYETTE - A former Chicago man is going to prison for 38 years for selling cocaine at a Lafayette apartment complex.

A jury found Jamaal Moore, 27, guilty of several drug charges during a trial earlier this month. Moore's arrest was the result of a drug task force investigation. Tippecanoe County prosecutor Pat Harrington says Moore sold crack cocaine at Country View estates at least four times in September 2007.

Harrington said Moore has previous convictions of delivering and possession of cocaine in Cook County.

---

October 9, 2008: WLFI TV

Jury convicts man of dealing cocaine

Updated: Thursday, 09 Oct 2008, 9:27 AM EDT

Published : Thursday, 09 Oct 2008, 9:27 AM EDT

- LAFAYETTE, Ind (WLFI) -- A jury deliberated about 2 hours before finding a man guilty of selling cocaine at a Lafayette apartment complex. Antonio Sessions, 27, was found guilty of dealing and possession of cocaine.

Sessions was arrested in October 2007 as a result of an investigation by the Lafayette street crimes unit and drug task force at Country View Estates. "He sold crack cocaine to an undercover officer at Country View Estates," said Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington.

Tippecanoe Superior 2 Judge Tom Busch also found Sessions to be a Habitual Offender and Habitual Substance Offender. Harrington said Sessions has prior convictions for delivery of a controlled substance in 1998 and 2003 in Cook County, Illinois. He was convicted of possession of cocaine in 2004 in Tippecanoe County.

Session faces up 80 years in prison when he's sentenced on October 24th.

October 9, 2008: WLFI TV

Former foster parent sentenced for child molesting

Updated: Thursday, 09 Oct 2008, 9:18 AM EDT
Published : Thursday, 09 Oct 2008, 9:18 AM EDT

- LAFAYETTE, Ind (WLFI)--A former foster parent is sentenced to four years in prison for child molesting. Paul Ray Smith, 45, of Lafayette pleaded guilty to two felony counts of child molesting.

Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington said Smith molested a young girl that was placed in his care. "Police officers investigated to see that there were any other victims," said Harrington. "There is no evidence Smith was involved with any other children in his home."

At the time of Smith was charged in April, Villages CEO Sharon Pierce said the Smiths had been licensed as foster parents for more than 2 years. During that time 21 foster children lived with the family. After he's released from prison, Smith will serve two years on house arrest with GPS monitoring, then two years on probation.

October 9, 2008: WLFI TV

Convicted drug dealer sentenced

Updated: Thursday, 09 Oct 2008, 9:20 AM EDT
Published : Thursday, 09 Oct 2008, 9:20 AM EDT

- LAFAYETTE, Ind (WLFI) -- A convicted drug dealer was sentenced Tuesday to 30 years in prison. In June, a Tippecanoe Superior Two jury found Jeffery Anderson Junior, 26, of Chicago guilty of dealing and possession of cocaine. Anderson was arrested as part of a drug task force investigation last March. Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington said undercover officers purchased drugs from Anderson on two occasions. "He said officers with a search warrant found more than 56 grams of cocaine and a thousand dollars in cash at his apartment," said Harrington.

October 7, 2008: WLFI TV

Area schools to implement crime hotline

Updated: Oct 7, 2008 06:20 PM EDT

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (WLFI) - Schools in Tippecanoe County may soon have access to the national crime hotline already used throughout the community. You may have heard of calling We-Tip to report crime in the community. Now, the goal is to expand the reporting of crime seen or threatened at area schools.

Klondike Middle School principal Chris Cannon said she feels WeTip is needed.

"The influx of gangs and gang activities, I think more and more, we see that in Tippecanoe County. I think it's important to be proactive. To have something the students will be able to access," said Cannon.

WeTip Chief Executive Officer Susan Aguilar said WeTip has seen all types of problems in its 36 year history.

"Just about every single crime that has gone out into the community has happened in the schools. Fraud, drugs, vandalism, graffiti, threats, bullying," said Aguilar.

And the caller reporting any crime remains completely anonymous.

"If the informant tried to identify themselves in anyway we tell them we have to disconnect this call. You're going to have to call back and get a different operator because we cannot know who you are. Then we have no tapping, tracing or caller ID," said Aguilar.

The Tippecanoe County Prosecutor's office funds the $10,000 a year program. Project Safe Neighborhood and Gang Initiative Grant Coordinator Kathryn Redd said the WeTip call center received 560 criminal reports since it started in Tippecanoe County last May.

"At least 70 percent of them involve children in some way, shape or form," said Redd.

Tippecanoe School Corporation's Director of Administrative Services Christy Fraley said TSC may also be on board.

"We see a lot of different tips. Our students and our parents report anything that they see that they're uncomfortable with at school and really aren't comfortable with telling an administrator or a teacher at the school," said Fraley.

To report a crime on the WeTip hotline call (800)-78-CRIME. Crimes can also be reported at www.wetip.com.

A reward up to $1,000 is offered for helpful information.

Report by Renetta DuBose, WLFI.

---

July 7, 2008: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Internet predator convicted

One of 24 people arrested statewide in 2006 during an internet predator sting operation has been convicted in Federal Court of soliciting sex with a police officer posing as a 13 year old girl.

The statewide operation included several local law enforcement agencies, including the Lafayette Police Department, Tippecanoe County Sheriff's Department and the Tippecanoe County Prosecutor's Office.

Jeffrey P. Taylor, 39, of Logansport was recently convicted in a Hammond Federal Courtroom following a one and a half day jury trial, according to a press release from the United States Attorney's Office in Hammond.

---

June 30, 2008: WLFI TV

New tipline yields nearly 80 crime reports

Updated: June 30, 2008 02:18 PM EDT

Reported by Alyssa Rossomme, WLFI

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (WLFI) - A new hotline has collected nearly 80 crime tips from people in Tippecanoe County in just one month. The Tippecanoe County Prosecutor's Office started the WeTip anonymous crime tip-line on June first. Project Safe Neighborhood Coordinator Kathryn Redd said so far, citizens have made 78 reports of illegal activity through WeTip. She said some of the tips involve more than one crime. Redd said detailed information given by anonymous tippers is helping police investigate crime in specific neighborhoods. She said she is pleased with the number of callers looking out for the well-being of children.

"People are paying attention to [illegal activity], and people are paying attention to the children. So I found that very encouraging," said Redd.

Anyone can provide information about a crime or suspicious activity completely anonymously. Sheriff Tracy Brown said while police prefer witnesses use their name when reporting tips, anonymous information is better than no information at all.

"The one thing we're very keen on right now, obviously because the clock is ticking for the courthouse bombing. We've had some tips come in through the WeTip line, not only for that, but we continue to get tips for other criminal activity. And it's a pretty wide range. Everything from misdemeanor conduct, to serious felonies are being reported through WeTip so it's going to be a benefit for us," said Brown.

"I would just encourage people to call, if for some reason they're not comfortable with calling law enforcement, or calling another support agency that we have in Tippecanoe County to call WeTip," added Redd.

Anyone can report a crime or suspicious activity 24 hours a day by calling the WeTip hotline at 1-800-78-CRIME. WeTip offers a reward of up to $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a criminal.

June 26, 2008: Lafayette Leader

Value of safety

20 June 26, 2008

Local

THE LAFAYETTE LEADER

Project Safe Neighborhoods launched in Tippecanoe County

By Rebecca Edwards
fcrebecca@sbcglobal.net

Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington first heard about a program called Project Safe Neighborhoods while at a conference in the spring of 2007.

He soon applied for a grant to implement the program in Tippecanoe County. The $53,000 grant was awarded and the funds were received last fall.

Shortly thereafter, program coordinator Kathryn Redd was hired to orchestrate the complex program, which is purposed to give rental property owners and managers the tools and motivation to make their properties less conducive to criminal activity.

Approximately ninety percent of crime in Tippecanoe County occurs at rental properties, Harrington said. "That's why the program is so important to our community."

Harrington said that he was made aware of the severity of Tippecanoe County's drug and gang crime situation during his first days as prosecutor.

"When I took office, the community basically told me the largest problem for our community was gang and drug activity. This grant addresses those activities."

The Project Safe Neighborhood program involves training sessions for rental property managers and owners, which equip them to identify changes they can make to the dwellings they manage which will make them safer, up-to-code and also help eliminate the tendency for criminals to gravitate to their properties.

The program also incorporates the implementation of the WeTip crime hotline (1-800-78-CRIME), a one hundred percent anonymous tip-line, operated by a non-profit organization.

WeTip offers rewards to tippers whose information leads to the arrest and conviction of a criminal in Tippecanoe County. Callers are asked if they would like to receive a reward if their tip results in a conviction. They are then given a three name code which will be their means of collecting their reward.

According to Kathryn Redd, the hotline will help ensure that illegal activity is reported, an essential component of the Project Safe Neighborhood program. She said her passion for the program comes from her concern for the people and children whose quality of life suffers as a result of living in an unsafe environment where drug and gang activity is taking place.

"The purpose is to teach property owners and managers how to take steps and put guidelines in place to keep their property and residents safe and maintain property value. For me personally, it's all about the people," said Redd. "Ensuring children have safe conditions to live and play."

Redd has partnered with all five law enforcement jurisdictions within Tippecanoe County to ensure the success of PSN and WeTip.

She has also gained the support of almost all of the area schools, which got WeTip flyers in the hands of students just before school let out for summer break.

The first training session for rental property owners takes place next Monday and Tuesday, but registration is closed because the sessions are full.

However, property managers can still sign up for sessions being held throughout the summer. The next sessions are already half full and will take place July 21 and 22.

After that, interested individuals can sign up for the third set of classes, August 4 and 5.

Property owners can sign up by email: kredd@tippecanoe.in.gov

Property owners can sign up by phone at:

765-413-7238.

June 20, 2008: United States Attorney's Office L.E.C.C. Informant 4: Volume 6, Issue 2; United States Department of Justice, U.S. Attorney's Office Northern District of Indiana

Project Safe Neighborhoods in Tippecanoe County

Patrick K. Harrington, Tippecanoe County Prosecutor, and Kathryn J. Redd, Tippecanoe Project Safe Neighborhood/Gang Initiative Coordinator, are pleased to announce the first phase of the launch of the TIPPECANOE COUNTY WeTip anonymous illegal activity reporting hotline.

(On Right at Microphone) Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Patrick Harrington makes opening comments during a press conference announcing Project Safe Neighborhood/Gang Anti-Crime accomplishments on May 28, 2008 at Duncan Hall in Lafayette, Indiana.

In response to the citizens desire to become an active partner with law enforcement in ridding their neighborhoods of illegal activities and crime, all Tippecanoe County law enforcement agencies have partnered with We Tip on the war against crime.

By incorporating, We Tip Municipal, Law Enforcement, and School programs into a comprehensive initiative, all citizens are assured that they can use the system and that their crime tips will be forwarded to the appropriate law enforcement agency.

As the first phase of the We Tip program, over 65,000 flyers will be distributed, through the schools, to every child in Tippecanoe School Corporation, Lafayette School Corporation, and West Lafayette Community School Corporation. Based on the model used in the Compton Unified School District, in California, each child will be given three flyers and asked to distribute one to each neighbor adjacent to their home.

This grassroots initiative puts the power back in the hands of the citizens and away from those involved in illegal activity.

We Tip operates "800" toll-free lines, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, by trained operators who are able to field calls in English and Spanish and with a TIDY machine for the hearing-impaired.

We Tip is one of the most effective tools that we can use to keep our community safe.
The We Tip Hotline will be live on June 1.

Further announcements will be made at the Tippecanoe County Prosecutor's Project Safe Neighborhood Anti-Crime Initiatives Press Conference on May 28, 2008 at 5:00pm, Duncan Hall. Susan Aguilar, WeTip CEO, will be speaking to the press at that time.

---

June 8, 2008: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Safety program to train landlords

By SOPHIA VORAVONG; svoravong@journalandcourier.com

Deb Evans and her husband, Jim, own and manage two apartment buildings on Lafayette's south end, along with smaller properties in West Lafayette and Rossville.

Over the last couple of years, some tenants have been victims of vehicle break-ins and property thefts. A few others were worried that neighbors had been involved in illegal drug use.

"It wasn't this way two years ago, but things seem to be going steadily in this direction," said Deb Evans, a lifelong Tippecanoe County resident who was raised in Battle Ground.

"We do try to stay on top of things and screen our tenants as best as possible. We are very hands-on and do everything, management-wise, ourselves."

The Evanses are among dozens of rental property owners who will take part in landlord training through Project Safe Neighborhoods, an anti-crime initiative recently announced by the Tippecanoe County prosecutor's office.

The first six- to eight-hour class is expected to begin early this summer.

Kathy Redd, an investigator with the prosecutor's office and the program's coordinator, said a large part of the training will focus on steps rental property owners should take before accepting a tenant.

The class also will go over standards for safe and decent housing.

"It goes through the role of checking the applicant -- setting criteria that they want for their property, bearing in mind fair housing laws," Redd said. "They could choose to have all vehicles parked on their property be registered. ... They could require that applications only be accepted in person."

Redd, who had been meeting with rental property owners and neighborhood groups since December, said she came across several incidents of applications being sent to Chicago on a weekly basis.

To ensure that everyone is treated fairly, Redd said, standards set by property owners should be applied to all applicants.

"That's where it does become challenging," she said. "But you can't do it to one potential tenant and not another. That's absolutely imperative."

Deb Evans said she is excited for the program to start. She and her husband took part in one of the focus groups hosted by Redd.

"I am really impressed," Evans said. "My husband and I walked away feeling like we have somebody on our side. This has always been a great community. We need to keep it that way."

Project Safe Neighborhoods is a federal program that larger cities nationwide have used to combat issues such as drug dealing, weapons offenses, robberies and vandalism. Tippecanoe County received its $52,398 grant last summer.

Data from the Lafayette Police Department shows a rise in narcotics-related investigations, from 410 in 2004 to 632 in 2007. Aggravated assaults -- batteries that resulted in seriously bodily injury -- also steadily rose during the same time frame, from 147 in 2004 to 194 in 2007.

Officials say they hope that Project Safe Neighborhoods will help drive those crime numbers down. The program also falls under "weeding" efforts for Weed & Seed, another federal initiative Lafayette is participating in to combat crime.

Ken Weller, executive director of Legal Aid Corp. of Tippecanoe County, applauds the efforts of the prosecutor's office. But he also has concerns.

"I'm not convinced that if they target rental property tenants, all our problems are going to magically disappear," he said. "They will just move elsewhere in the Lafayette area. Some attention needs to be paid to that.

" ... Some criminals, too, are homeowners."

Weller has been working on a standard lease that he would like to see used in Tippecanoe County. He has had clients who have had no written lease from their landlords.

"This whole program is very interesting," Weller said. "But Tippecanoe County has such a wide variety of tenants that they may have to take a more individual approach than originally envisioned."

---

May 29, 2008: Journal and Courier Newspaper

Leaders aim to crack down on crime before it gets out of hand

By SOPHIA VORAVONG; svoravong@journalandcourier.com

In the early '90s, when residents of Historic Ninth Street Hill learned someone was selling drugs out of a home there, neighbors sat nearby and recorded the license plate numbers of vehicles seen leaving the home.

"I was mad," Jane Boswell said. "How dare people do that in our nice neighborhood."

Now Ninth Street Hill -- and much of Tippecanoe County -- is dealing with illegal drug activity on a larger and more frequent scale. Getting a strong hold on a problem before it worsens is one of the key initiatives behind Project Safe Neighborhoods.

Representatives of law enforcement, local dignitaries, the prosecutor's office and other Tippecanoe County officials came together Wednesday at Duncan Hall to formally introduce the federal anti-crime and anti-gang program.

"It's critical that we attack the problem now," said Kathy Redd, an investigator with the prosecutor's office and the Project Safe Neighborhoods' coordinator. "If we don't handle it aggressively, it is quite possible for us to lose this city in three years, according to trends."

Redd, who was raised in Lafayette, has spent the last year researching crime trends and analyzing trouble spots in Tippecanoe County.

During a ride-along with the Lafayette Police Department's Street Crimes Unit, she witnessed firsthand suspected cocaine dealers on street corners.

After handing out fliers for WeTip, an anonymous hotline residents can call to report illegal activity, she was threatened by suspected gang members.

And in Redd's conversations and meetings with residents, she encountered dozens of people who said they knew of crimes taking place but feared reporting them.

"We are facing a problem with safety," Redd said. "We're seeing the degradation of neighborhoods. There is no one person to blame. What Project Safe Neighborhoods is trying to do is mobilize the community -- that's it is up to all of us to fight this."

Project Safe Neighborhoods also has been implemented in Allen, Lake and Saint Joseph counties, said David Capp, interim U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Indiana.

Each community was allowed to use the grant -- $53,398 for Tippecanoe County -- to address its most prevalent problem.

"I knew there were some growing law enforcement issues in Tippecanoe County. They were seeing an influx of problems from the south side of Chicago and Lake County," Capp said. "We felt this was an area that we should start focusing on."

Boswell, a resident of Historic Ninth Street Hill for more than 30 years, was part of a focus group to inform neighborhoods about the program.

Part of Project Safe Neighborhoods includes training rental property owners how to recognize signs and, proactively, better screen applicants before they become tenants.

"We started seeing changes in our neighborhood in the last couple of years," Boswell said. "More and more crimes were being reported. We are a diverse neighborhood with a nice bell-shaped curve of ages and incomes.

"But to have gang-related vandalism and gang graffiti, it was very unnerving."

Residents there soon plan to create window clings to hang in their vehicles that will identify them as part of the neighborhood. That way, Boswell said, police will more easily recognize cars that are out of place.

It's this kind of community cooperation that officials -- among them Lafayette Mayor Tony Roswarski, West Lafayette Mayor John Dennis and Prosecutor Pat Harrington -- hope to encourage.

Russell Conard, who graduated this past weekend from Harrison High School, too urges the community to recognize a problem does exist. He pointed out the recent knife fight at Faith Community Center, in which five people were injured, as an example.

Conard lives near the center and exercises there.

"There's rising violence in our community," he said. "I have to admit that it's quite unsettling."

May 29, 2008: Journal and Courier Newspaper

New project gives crime fighters a major ally

By SOPHIA VORAVONG; svoravong@journalandcourier.com

Officials on Wednesday formally announced the start of Project Safe Neighborhoods in Tippecanoe County.

The federal program is an anti-crime and anti-gang initiative that larger cities have implemented to combat issues such as drug dealing, weapons offenses, robberies and vandalism.

Project Safe Neighborhoods will take proactive and reactive approaches to fight crime.

Part of the funding will be used to train rental property owners in ways to keep out illegal activity, in part by training them to better screen potential tenants.

The second aspect is the launch of WeTip, an anonymous hotline that residents can use to report crime tips to any law enforcement agency.

THE BACKGROUND

Last summer, the Tippecanoe County prosecutor's office received a $53,398 grant for the initiative. Funding was used to hire an investigator and project coordinator and to purchase notebook computers so that police can track and analyze trouble spots.

David Capp, interim U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Indiana, said he approached Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington about the program as a way to address growing problems believed to stem from criminals originally from Chicago and northwest Indiana.

THE IMPACT

Jane Boswell is a resident of Historic Ninth Street Hill in Lafayette, where about one-third of the neighborhood is rental properties.

Herself a rental property owner, Boswell was one of dozens who participated in focus groups for Project Safe Neighborhoods.

"Lafayette is not the same as it was 20 years ago," she said.

"I don't believe that any neighborhood in Lafayette is immune to problems we're seeing as a community."

May 29, 2008: WLFI TV

Community members learn about new crime tip-line

Updated: May 29, 2008 04:26 PM EDT

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (WLFI) - The Tippecanoe County Prosecutor's office has launched a crime tip-line to get citizens involved in keeping neighborhoods safe. Community members learned more about the tip-line in free WeTip training sessions. Susan Aguilar, WeTip C.E.O. said the hotline is used in hundreds of cities as a way for citizens to report crime or suspicious activity. Tips are passed on to local police for investigation.

"We have helped law enforcement to arrest over 15,000 criminals, we've taken nearly a half million tips and we have helped law enforcement confiscate $340 million worth of illegal drugs and narcotics. So we've made a real impact on communities all over the nation," said Aguilar.

Aguilar said WeTip is effective, primarily because callers are completely anonymous. WeTip does not record or trace calls, and the phone system does not have caller I.D.

"We tell our informants, 'Do not give your name or identify yourself in any way.' If they try to identify themselves, we have to hang up that phone and tell them, 'Call back, talk to a different operator, we cannot know who you are,'" she explained.

Tracy Walder, a member of the St. Lawrence-McAllister Neighborhood Association, participated in a training session.

"The anonymous aspect is probably the greatest part of it. And just the fact that they have access to so many law enforcement agencies," she said.

WeTip offers a reward of up to $1000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of a criminal. The WeTip number is 1-800-78-CRIME

---

May 28, 2008: WLFI TV

New crime fighting program announced

Updated: May 28, 2008 03:18 PM EDT

LAFAYETTE, Ind (WLFI)--A new community initiative is aimed at fighting crime in Tippecanoe County.

The new initiative, "Project Safe Neighborhoods" is designed to keep illegal activities out of rental properties. Project Safe Neighborhoods Gang Initiative Coordinator Kathryn Redd said the project includes a free training program for rental property owners and managers. "We hope to educate them home to keep illegal activity out of their properties," said Redd. "Today it's something they really need to give consideration to because at a minimum 90% of all crimes are being committed out of individuals living in rental properties."

Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington said Project Safe Neighborhoods has proved to reduce crime in communities across the country. "We felt law enforcement agencies and myself that it was important to start this program to try to reduce the crime in those high crime areas," said Harrington.

Another effort Harrington hopes will help is WeTip, a toll-free anonymous crime tip-line. "It goes right along with PSN, because it gives a vehicle for the community to become involved in fighting crime, one neighborhood at a time, and taking back our neighborhoods," said Harrington.

The "We Tip" Tippecanoe County tip-line is funded by the Prosecutor's Office to get the community involved in fighting illegal activity. Any citizen over the age of five can make an anonymous tip by calling 1-800-78-CRIME.

There are 9 WeTip training sessions tomorrow for community members. The 30 minute sessions are held in the Grand Prairie Conference Room at the Tippecanoe County Office Building. The County Office building is located at 20 N. Third Street in Lafayette. Session times are: 8:00a.m., 8:45a.m., 9:45a.m., 10:30a.m., 1:00p.m., 1:45p.m., 6:30p.m., 7:00p.m., 7:45p.m.

Susan Aguilar, Chief Executive Officer, WeTip, and Sue Mandell, Director of Marketing, WeTip, will be providing an introduction to the new WETip Anonymous Crime Tip line program. The sessions are limited to 20 people. If you would like to attend send an email to kredd@tippecanoe.in.gov. Please indicate what session you would like to attend.

May 28, 2008: Journal and Courier Newspaper

Make a difference in your neighborhood

By SOPHIA VORAVONG
svoravong@journalandcourier.com

Beginning Sunday, Tippecanoe County residents can anonymously report tips of illegal activity to any law enforcement agency.

Police and Lafayette, West Lafayette and Tippecanoe County schools recently partnered to launch the Tippecanoe County WeTip anonymous illegal activity reporting hot line. The hot line is part of the Tippecanoe County Prosecutor's Office's new Project Safe Neighborhoods initiative.

WeTip, a national nonprofit organization, staffs the toll-free line 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, executive director Sue Mandell said. All tips will be forwarded within hours to the appropriate agency.

"We need citizens to be the eyes and ears for law enforcement," she said. "They can't do it alone anymore. We need to watch out for each other -- that's the key."

The phone number will be (800) 782-8463 or (800) 78 CRIME.

Earlier this month students in all three of the county's school corporations were sent home with three fliers announcing WeTip. They were asked to keep one and give the other two fliers to both adjacent neighbors.

More than 55,000 fliers have been distributed.

Prosecutor Pat Harrington said WeTip has 100 percent confidentiality. For example, he said, if anyone gives their name during the call, they will be asked to hang up, call again and speak to a different operator.

---

May 19, 2008: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Law enforcement, schools to partner for crime tip line

STAFF REPORTS

Tippecanoe County residents will have a new way to report crime tips to any law enforcement agency this summer.

The Tippecanoe County Prosecutor's Office announced in a news release today that agencies and schools will partner to launch the Tippecanoe County WeTip anonymous illegal activity reporting hotline. The hotline is part of the office's new Project Safe Neighborhoods initiative.

The WeTip hotline will forward all tips to the appropriate agency. WeTip, a national non-profit organization, staffs the toll-free line 24 hours per day.

The hotline will go live on June 1. The phone number will be (800) 782-8463 or (800) 78 CRIME.

The first phase of the launch will include sending fliers home with all students in the Lafayette, West Lafayette Community and Tippecanoe school corporations. Each child will receive three fliers and be asked to also deliver one to both adjacent neighbors.

A press conference on the initiative will be held at 5 p.m. May 28 at Duncan Hall

---

April 20, 2008: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Grand Prix partiers have day in court

By CURT SLYDER; cslyder@journalandcourier.com

Indiana University student Ashley Norman, 20, came to Purdue University last weekend to party with friends during the annual Grand Prix.

Less than a week later, she and 140 other Grand Prix revelers were in the Tippecanoe County Courthouse facing alcohol-related charges.

The Tippecanoe County Prosecutor's Office and several courts held joint hearings Thursday morning for everyone facing alcohol charges they received during the weekend.

In three large groups, the defendants first watched a videotaped initial hearing in Tippecanoe Superior Court 6 advising them of their rights and the potential penalties they faced, then were ushered off to one of three places to finalize their charges and pay fines.

"I thought it was pretty convenient," Norman said. "It was quick and easy."

According to Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington, the courts handled the cases that way to speed up the process.

Most of the people with first-time charges ended up with fines as well as enrollment in an alcohol program, either through the university or the court system, Harrington said. If they did everything as ordered there would be no permanent record.

"It's kind of a wake-up call," Harrington said. "We're saying you are accountable for your actions but we're not going to try to ruin your career."

Purdue students generally were ordered to enroll in an alcohol awareness class offered by the university Counseling and Psychological Services, or CAPS.

CAPS staff members were at the courthouse Thursday morning to enroll students in the class. The cost of the class was built into the court service fees, said CAPS clinical social worker Marty Green.

Many will have their classes next fall.

According to Cindy Houseman, director of Tippecanoe County Court Services, anyone living in Tippecanoe County who is not a Purdue student was ordered to take classes administered by Court Services.

Anyone from outside the area was enrolled in whatever classes are available in their area, Houseman said.

Of the 141 people arrested, 31 had their charges dropped, Houseman said.

Purdue sophomore Jordan Kirkegaard, 20, liked the streamlined process.

---

April 15, 2008: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Drug sweep nets cocaine, $300,000

By SOPHIA VORAVONG; svoravong@journalandcourier.com

Authorities seized more than 5 pounds of cocaine and $300,000 in cash Monday from a residence on Lafayette's north end in what they're describing as the largest residential drug raid in Tippecanoe County in recent memory.

Three people were arrested after investigators served a warrant about 4 a.m. at an apartment at 914 N. Eight St. The Tippecanoe County Drug Task Force, the Indiana State Police drug enforcement section, the Lafayette Police Department's Street Crimes Unit and a Purdue University police K-9 team assisted.

The Department of Child Services also was called when at least one elementary school-aged child was found inside, Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington said.

News of the arrests surprised neighbors who said they never suspected illegal activity there.

"They were all so friendly and respectful," said Rebecca McCreedy, who lives next door. "The police patrol this area pretty frequently. If anything like this happened, I'd guess it would be another house." Harrington said authorities have been investigating one of the home's tenants, Sergio Neri-Ortiz, 29, since he sold cocaine to a confidential informant in September.

Neri-Ortiz was charged Monday in Tippecanoe Superior Court 2 with two counts of dealing cocaine, a Class A felony, and two counts of possession of cocaine, a Class A felony. He is being held in the Tippecanoe County Jail on $250,000 bond.

Police also arrested Eleno Vasquez, 37, and Amanda Vasquez, 32, on suspicion of possession of cocaine. Both also reside at 914 N. Eighth St.

Harrington said the prosecutor's office is still reviewing charges against the Vasquezes and that one offense likely will be neglect of a dependent. They are being held in jail each on $50,000 bond.

He said the cocaine found inside -- roughly 2.5 kilos -- has an estimated street value of $250,000. "This was a major drug recovery into a substantial drug ring in the Lafayette area," Harrington said. "With this substantial seizure, we hope to have slowed down the sale of drugs in the community."

McCreedy and her roommate, Laura Hickey, said they heard some yelling Monday morning and thought it might have been a domestic dispute. Then they noticed unmarked vehicles blocking both ends of their street. The arrests happened so quietly that McCreedy went back to bed.

Hickey said she never noticed people coming and going from the home. "I'm used to seeing the kids playing outside. Everyone who lived there was so nice," Hickey said. "It was the same faces all the time. I don't remember their names, but we said hi. "It is really hard to process the information to tell you what I think. I am just really shocked."

Authorities made two additional arrests related to the same investigation.

Ismael Hernandez-Barradas, 32, was charged Monday in Tippecanoe Superior Court 2 with dealing marijuana, a Class C felony; possession of marijuana, a Class D felony; and maintaining a common nuisance, a Class D felony. According to court documents, he is accused of selling marijuana out of his Summertime Trail residence to a confidential informant.

Tippecanoe County investigators on Monday also went to Crawfordsville and served a felony warrant on Ricardo Garcia, age unavailable. He's suspected of dealing cocaine in Montgomery County.

Harrington said Immigration and Customs Enforcement is checking into whether the five suspects are in the United States legally.

April 15, 2008: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Drug counts filed against 2

STAFF REPORTS

Two men were charged Monday with drug offenses after West Lafayette police and the Tippecanoe County Drug Task Force served a warrant last week at their West Lafayette home.

Yujie Li, 21, is charged in Tippecanoe Superior Court 1 with dealing cocaine, a Class A felony; possession of cocaine, a Class C felony; dealing in marijuana, a Class A misdemeanor; possession of marijuana, a Class A misdemeanor; possession of paraphernalia, a Class A misdemeanor; and maintaining a common nuisance, a Class D felony.

Ali Almelhem, 20, is charged with possession of a controlled substance, a Class D felony; dealing in marijuana, a Class A misdemeanor; possession of marijuana, a Class D felony; possession of paraphernalia, a Class A misdemeanor; and maintaining a common nuisance, a Class D felony. Authorities served a warrant April 8 at their home at 1102 Lindberg Road after a seven-month investigation. Authorities seized marijuana, psilocybin mushrooms, drug paraphernalia and $390 in cash from Li and Almelhem's residence.

April 15, 2008: Lafayette Journal and Courier

6 counts filed against WL driver who hit woman

By SOPHIA VORAVONG; svoravong@journalandcourier.com

A West Lafayette woman is suspected of purposely striking another woman with her vehicle last week, pushing the victim into the doorway of an apartment building, according to court documents filed Monday.

Mindy Lee Warthan, 27, has been charged in Tippecanoe Superior Court 1 with five felonies and a misdemeanor in the crash that seriously injured Erin M. Hutchins.

Hutchins, 28, of Lafayette is believed to have been dating Warthan's estranged boyfriend. Hutchins was treated at Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis for a shattered pelvis, cuts to her lower back, and bloody scrapes to her leg and foot.

She has since been released, a spokeswoman for Clarian Health Partners, which runs Methodist, said Monday.

Lafayette police were called about 6 a.m. April 8 to the 3000 block of Keyes Court, in the Country View Estates apartment complex. Warthan is accused of driving a 1990 Buick Century that left the road and hit Hutchins, who had been outside with her roommate and the roommate's cousin.

Warthan was arrested about 10 minutes later pulling into a residence on Oregon Street. She had her 8-month-old daughter with her at the time.

According to a probable cause affidavit filed Monday with the charges, a neighbor heard and saw the driver of a car scream at Hutchins and toss what appeared to be a bag of clothes. The neighbor then saw the driver back the car up and accelerate forward, striking Hutchins.

Hutchins, who lives at Country View, was pushed into the wall and then thrown into the door of an apartment next to hers. The door was knocked off its door jambs.

Warthan told investigators that she thought she had put her car in reverse and said she tried to stop after realizing the vehicle went forward.

But Officer Mark Roberts, a crash reconstructionist with the Lafayette Police Department, noted that tire marks on the sidewalk and in the grass leading to the building showed characteristics of acceleration.

Warthan was being held late Monday in the Tippecanoe County Jail on a $25,000 surety bond.

She is charged with aggravated battery, a Class B felony; battery by means of a deadly weapon, a Class C felony; battery resulting in bodily injury, a Class C felony; criminal recklessness, a Class C felony; neglect of a dependent, a Class D felony; and leaving the scene of an accident resulting in seriously bodily injury, a Class A misdemeanor.

April 15, 2008: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Police make another arrest in drug investigation

Updated: April 15, 2008 06:59 PM EDT

LAFAYETTE, IND -- Police make another arrest as part of a drug task force investigation.

23-year old Juan Carlos Gonzalez is jailed on six counts, including dealing cocaine and possession of cocaine.

Tippecanoe County prosecutor Pat Harrington says Gonzalez was arrested this afternoon outside his house in Lafayette.

Court records say Gonzalez purchased drugs from a confidential informant at least three times last summer.

Three other suspected drug dealers were arrested yesterday and officers seized five pounds of cocaine from a house in Lafayette.

---

April 11, 2008: Journal and Courier Newspaper

Manslaughter gets boyfriend 60 years

By SOPHIA VORAVONG; svoravong@journalandcourier.com

Days after Brandi R. Thomas was killed in her apartment, the Lafayette woman's family found a letter she had handwritten to her boyfriend and father of her infant son.

It detailed a relationship that was quickly growing apart.

"I need you right now more than anything. ... I don't know if you love me anymore," Thomas, 34, wrote on Jan. 9, a day before firefighters found her badly burned body. "I'm sad, I'm hurt. Saying goodbye sucks. I'm going to say goodbye now."

Thomas' mother, Brenda Johnson, read the letter Thursday morning during the sentencing hearing of Thomas' estranged boyfriend, Jeremy R. Taylor.

Tippecanoe Superior Court Judge Don Johnson sentenced Taylor, 30, to 60 years in prison in connection to the woman's stabbing death. He pleaded guilty in February to voluntary manslaughter, a Class A felony, and arson, a Class B felony.

"I'm very sorry I did this. There's not a day I don't regret it," said Taylor, who glanced up from his chair only briefly to look at Thomas' family.

"I'm sorry. I'm sorry."

Thomas' body was found Jan. 10 after Lafayette firefighters responded to a blaze at her upstairs garage apartment at 22051/2 N. 18th St. An autopsy determined she died of multiple sharp force trauma and massive blood loss from her injuries.

She left behind a teenage son, Jordan Thomas, and a now 5-month-old son, Logan, that she had with Taylor.

"Jeremy's bad people," Jordan Thomas said afterward. "Bad people get what they deserve."

Taylor's sentencing hearing was held Thursday at the magistrate's court in the Tippecanoe County Jail on a request made by law enforcement, the judge explained.

Detective Dan Shumaker of the Lafayette Police Department said investigators had received information of threats made against Taylor.

"There's not enough to start a case," Shumaker said. "But we had heard rumors on the streets."

Brenda Johnson -- referring to Taylor's lengthy history of substance abuse -- said she suspects it was someone who knew Taylor through drug use.

"It was no one in my family or her father's family," she said. "He was a drug dealer when they first met. Brandi was trying to get away from all that."

Taylor admitted he had gotten into an argument with Brandi Thomas the night of Jan. 9 and he pushed her down. He was accused of stabbing her and then starting a fire afterward to cover the crime.

Taylor told the judge on Thursday that he suspected Thomas had been seeing someone. He said he had been intoxicated and used cocaine that night.

His plea agreement, reached between Tippecanoe County Prosecutor Pat Harrington and Taylor's court-appointed attorneys -- public defender Amy Hutchison and deputy public defender Lee Griffith -- came 22 days after Thomas was killed.

"Every time I see him, he tells me he can't believe he did this," Hutchison said. "Jeremy did care about Brandi."

In her letter, Thomas also wrote she sensed Taylor had been cheating and growing distant. Still, she hoped the couple would be able to raise their son together.

Brenda Johnson, after reading the letter, had her own comments to share with Taylor.

"Why did you do that?" she said. "You were not big enough to walk away or call me. I believed in you."

"... At what time -- at what age -- how will I tell Logan what happened to his mother?"

Taylor also pleaded guilty in February to an unrelated charge of armed robbery in connection to a holdup in April 2007 at a Village Pantry store in Lafayette.

He was sentenced Thursday to 50 years for the voluntary manslaughter charge and 10 years for arson, with those sentences to be served at the same time.

He received 10 more years in prison for the robbery, to be served after the other terms.

Taylor cannot appeal his sentence under terms of the plea agreement. He also must pay $7,799 in restitution to the family for funeral costs.

The judge, noting the tension in the magistrate's court, urged the family to let go of any grudges they had.

"No one understands what happened," Don Johnson said.

"I hope people don't act on the threats. No matter the sentence, there's nothing that can bring her back."

April 11, 2008: Journal and Courier Newspaper

Sex offender gets 7 years, 6 months in prison for groping woman

STAFF REPORTS

A Lafayette man with prior felony convictions for child molesting and failing to register as a sex offender was sentenced today to seven years and six months in prison for groping a woman.

The sentence was the maximum that Chester E. Leloup, 61, could receive under a plea agreement with the Tippecanoe County prosecutor's office.

Leloup pleaded guilty in December to criminal confinement, a Class D felony, and to being a habitual offender.

According to court documents, a woman told Lafayette police that she was walking into Home Hospital on Aug. 3 when a man - claiming to be her brother - attempted to hug and kiss her.

She said the man, later identified as Leloup, also grabbed her breast. The woman was not physically injured.

Police suspected Leloup because of similar complaints against him made outside St. Elizabeth Medical Center.

Leloup was convicted in 1996 of child molesting in Benton County. He was released from prison about a year later.

A six-member Tippecanoe Superior Court 5 jury found him guilty in February 2006 of failing to register as a sex offender.

Deputy prosecutor Laura Zeman said Leloup's sentence handed down today in Tippecanoe Superior Court 1 will be served after he completes the Superior Court 5 sentence.

---

April 9, 2008: Journal and Courier Newspaper Editorial

Proactive approach deters crime

Knock on wood, Tippecanoe County hasn't experienced that kind of violence, and Lafayette police generally report crime trended downward between 2006 and 2007. That said, countywide crime figures indicate slight increases in violent crimes and property crimes from 1999 through 2005.

As the county's crime stats ticked up, area police have addressed problems, reporting more arrests for illegal possession of weapons and robbery. But traditionally police work is reactionary, responding after a crime is reported. That's in the process of changing here.

The first step to addressing any problem is identifying what and where specific crimes are occurring, then figuring out what might be the cause. Tippecanoe County already is addressing these issues.

A federal grant provided the county with funds to hire an investigator and purchase computers to track crimes, gang activities and arrests.

Kathy Redd, an investigator in the prosecutor's office, leads this effort, which includes working with rental property owners and crime watch groups to improve safety in the community.

It is refreshing to see residents and property owners working with law enforcement officials to curtail crimes. The proactive eyes and ears of neighborhood crime watch members, coupled with the efforts of rental property owners to landscape their apartments in a way to minimize crime, will send a message to the criminals and gangs that there is no safe haven to practice their trade.

In the meantime, the tracking figures provided by Redd and liaison officers at Lafayette police and the Tippecanoe sheriff's department will beef up patrols in problem areas, sending the message to the nefarious souls to take their enterprises somewhere else -- preferably somewhere outside our county and state.

The collaboration of residents, rental property owners, police and the prosecutor's office obviously won't end crime in Tippecanoe County. But the design of the grant and Redd's efforts will give residents and law enforcement officials the tools needed to make it more difficult for criminals and gang members to operate.

Crime flourishes when people allow it to exist. We applaud Prosecutor Pat Harrington, Redd, the rental property owners and residents for keeping Tippecanoe County safe, and we encourage others to get involved and learn what they might do to discourage crime.

---

April 7, 2008: Lafayette Journal and Courier

Anti-Crime Initiative Taking Shape

By SOPHIA VORAVONG
svoravong@journalandcourier.com

Since December, Kathy Redd has been meeting with rental property owners and neighborhood associations in Tippecanoe County to learn more about concerns they have regarding safety in the community.

The responses that Redd, an investigator with the Tippecanoe County prosecutor's office, received were almost uniform in each focus group.

"Almost unanimously, they were experiencing struggles with drug dealers living in the area and illegal activity happening on and near their property," she said. "They're frustrated about not being able to do anything about it, about not having the tools to help."

But some help will come soon.

Redd is the local coordinator for Project Safe Neighborhoods, an anti-crime and anti-gang initiative larger cities nationwide have successfully used to combat issues such as drug dealing, weapons offenses, robberies and vandalism.

For months she has been gathering statistics and working on a 267-page manual -- completed last week -- that will be used to help rental property managers. Redd said the first six- to eight-hour training class could begin by late May.

"We're looking forward to kicking out the program and getting the community behind us and engaged," she said. "We want the community to know that they can help make a difference. ... We really want to engage both tenants and landlords to become partners so that they do not have to live around illegal activity."

Last summer, the prosecutor's office received a $52,398 grant for the federal Project Safe Neighborhoods program. So far, it has been used to hire Redd and buy notebook computers so that Pat Harrington's office, Lafayette police, and Tippecanoe County sheriff's deputies can track and analyze trouble spots.

Harrington, the Tippecanoe County prosecutor, said the goal is to take a multiprong proactive and reactive approach in crime fighting "before it gets out of hand.

"It's a situation of recognizing the crime -- seeing that there's already been successful programs developed by other cities and bringing it here to Lafayette to implement."

A big part of Project Safe Neighborhoods involves working closely with rental property owners and managers and neighborhood associations, he said.

That's good news to Kyle Gingrich-Fulks, who grew up in the historic Perrin neighborhood just east of Lafayette's downtown and is co-chairwoman of its neighborhood association. An anti-crime committee was established last fall to help deal with issues that include transiency and loitering.

"We just had a meeting ... and talked about what we can do preventatively to tackle crime," she said. "I do think that people are more aware now. They aren't afraid to call police if they see something suspicious.

"It doesn't mean that crime won't happen, but it's a step in the right direction."

The Perrin neighborhood soon plans to put up signs showing that it has an active neighborhood crime watch. Residents also have been encouraged to leave on porch lights to deter criminals.

Gingrich-Fulks said they also plan on approaching city officials about getting additional lighting.

"We have a lot of unity going now," she said.

Part of the training that Redd will provide to landlords includes using Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design techniques, which encourages strategies such as making intruders easily observable.

Harrington said the design program would teach property managers other safety tactics: clearing bushes so that they don't cover windows, how to recognize drug labs and encouraging community policing.

Using information obtained from the Lafayette Housing Authority, Redd also compiled a list of rent-subsidized housing units in the Tippecanoe County. What she found is that 24 percent of all rental units in the community are low-income housing.

"The population is denser in those properties than it is for the average rental property in Tippecanoe County," Redd said. "The amount of people we have living in low-income housing is about 14,000. That's pretty substantial.

"It's also spread sporadically, which makes it difficult to manage."

In the Valley Center neighborhood, about 40 percent of all properties are a mix of houses and apartments for rent, said Michael Bittinger, president of its neighborhood association.

Though he said crime is not a huge problem there -- "at least not yet" -- Bittinger and his wife were active in forming the neighborhood association so that they could get to know their neighbors better.

"It's a feeling that I would like to have to be able to call my neighborhood my home," Bittinger said.

A sense of community pride is another goal of Harrington and Redd, who say that strong neighborhoods could drive out criminals.

"To criminals, that's not attractive," Harrington said. "They want to be anonymous."